Whew! You're done. It wasn't easy, and hopefully, the course will be easier to navigate than the enrollment. We'll use this next page to point out a few features of the course you should be aware of.

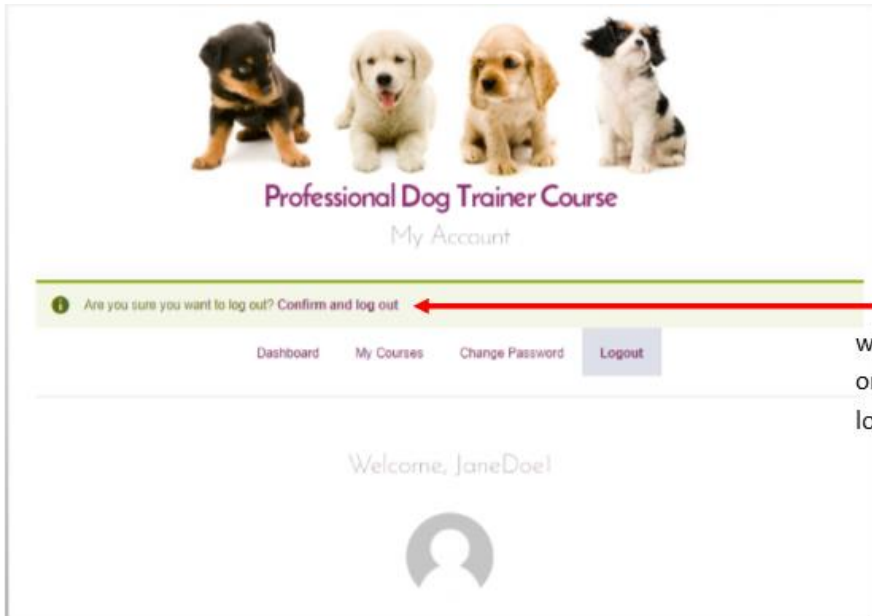

← This bar will help you keep track of your progress—just be sure to click on the lesson complete button when you finish a lesson.

← You can contact your instructor about logistical issues through this button. If you have questions about content, you should post that on Facebook.

← All of your modules and lessons are listed here, and will also be listed along the right-hand margin when you are in a lesson, so you navigate between lessons easily can

← Finally, you can navigate to other functions within the program from these links. You should log out when you've finished working for the time being. This is another of those not-so-intuitive functions of this program. When you click on this link, it will take you to another page, where you have to click another link (see below).

Although the shaded “Logout” button looks like what you should click on, you actually need to click on the “Confirm and log out” link above, to actually log out.

Okay—that’s about it for navigation. Once you get started in the course, it’s much easier.
